New Disability Inclusion Legislation

Government of South Australia

The State Government is writing some new disability legislation.

Legislation is a set of rules that everyone must follow.

We want to make sure everyone can participate in the community.

The new disability legislation will help us make the area where you live better.

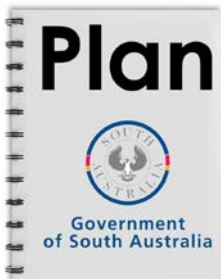

The legislation is called the Disability Inclusion Bill.

You can read the Disability Inclusion Bill here —

What is in the legislation

Government and councils will all have plans to include people with disability.

The Disability Inclusion Bill will affect government and council services like:

- public transport

- justice

- education

- healthcare

- housing

- community events

- public spaces.

The Disability Inclusion Bill will make these services even better for people with disability.
