" Rosevear's C.O. told me that he was hit by a shell and died instantly. At the time he was carting rations to the 57th Battalion at Daours. I had left the A.S.C. a few days before and Rosevear belonged to the 29th Co. and not the 27th. I afterwards saw his grave with cross erected in the British Military Cemetery at Daours. He was killed by the only shell that was put over and it hit Pte. Shaw as well who died afterwards. They heard the shell coming and dived under the cart, but the shell came under the cart from the other side. Rosevear came from Kew, Melbourne. "

Eye Witness - I saw the grave but did not see him killed.
