Wisewould,
Pte.Harold, 859

D. of Illness 4/12/15.

Wisewould went down to the beach at Anzac to the 6th Field Ambulance on 30/11/15 and from there to the First Casualty Clearing Hospital. He died of pneumonia on the Hospital Ship "Dongala" on his way to England and, apparently, when the ship was nearing her port and destination, as he was buried at Chatby, [redacted], on 4/12/15 - Grave No. 1906, and the Chaplain was the Revd.F.Dunford.

Pte H. 859.

D. of illness 4/12/15.

Witness was a tent mate of both the Wisewould brothers, and thought a lot of them. Harold died of penumonia at Malta. He had been sick on the troopship coming from Australia, but got better towards the end of the journey. After being at Anzac for a time he became sick again and was sent away. He was pretty bad when sent away from the Peninsula. Witness heard later of his death.

According to witness Wisewould was removed from the Peninsula to hospital very ill with dysentery, but witness does not know where Wisewould was taken or died. He thinks, however, that more particulars could be obtained from Sgt. Pearce of D.Coy. 13th Platoon, who was very intimate with both Wisewoulds.
