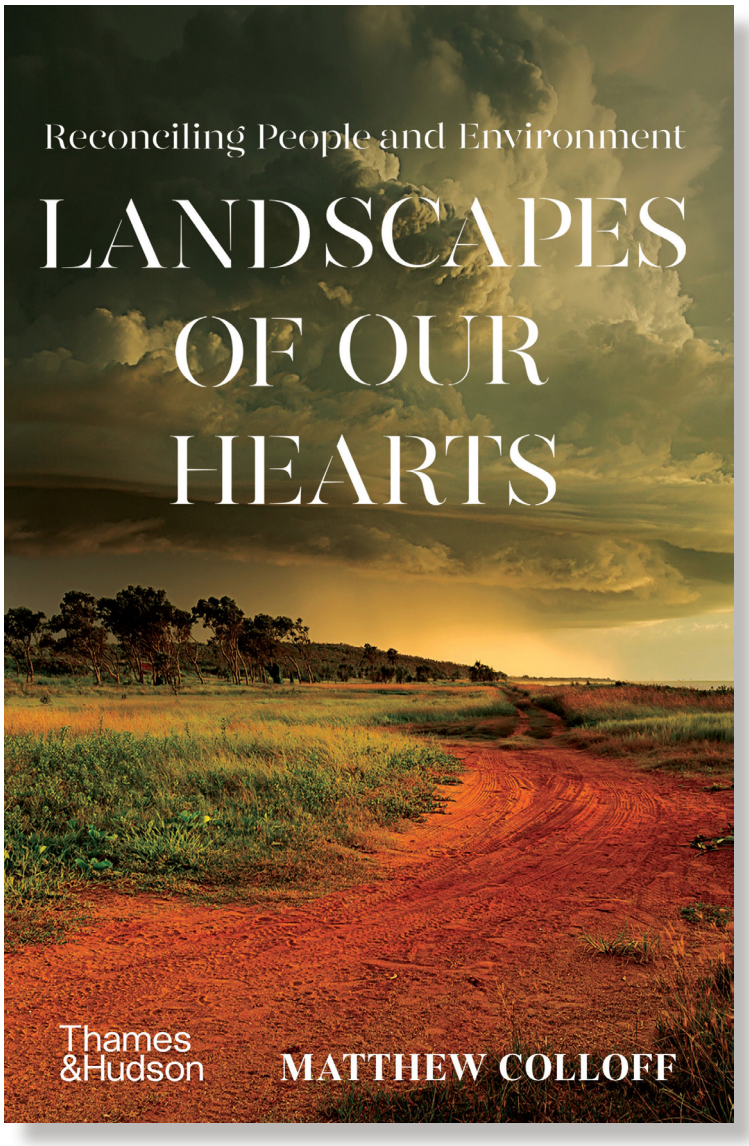
JULY 2020 NEW LEAD TITLE



The first title from our new narrative non-fiction list

- Brings a new understanding of the history of our land.
- Has a very strong environmental message, as well as a message of reconciliation.
- Incredibly timely in the wake of our recent bushfire crisis.
- Will appeal to anyone interested in the environment, natural history and reconciliation.
- Includes a 16pp colour section of landscapes featured in the text.

Matthew Colloff works at the Fenner School of Environment and Society at the Australian National University and before that was a research scientist at CSIRO for twenty-three years. He has had a distinguished career in the areas of climate change adaptation, conservation and ecosystem ecology, and is an award-winning writer.

Landscapes of Our Hearts: Reconciling People and Environment

Matthew Colloff

If we look afresh at our history through the land we live on, might Indigenous and non- Indigenous Australians find a path to a shared future?

An epic exploration of our relationship with this country, Landscapes of Our Hearts takes us from the Great Barrier Reef to the Central Desert, the High Country to Canberra's Limestone Plains. It is a book of hope and offers the possibility that a renewed connection to the landscape and to each other could pave the way towards reconciliation.

It will change the way you see this land.

JULY 2020 NEW LEAD FASHION

Gabrielle Chanel

Miren Arzalluz

Gabrielle 'Coco' Chanel is an icon of fashion, and can lay claim to having invented the look of the 20th century. At the height of the Belle Époque, she stripped women of their corsets and feathers, bobbed their hair, put them in bathing suits and sent them out to get tanned in the sun. She introduced the little black dress; trousers for women; costume jewelry; the exquisitely comfortable suit that became her trademark. Early in the Roaring Twenties, Chanel made the first ever couture perfume – No. 5 – presenting it in the famous little square-cut flacon that, inspired by Picasso and Cubism, became the arch symbol of the Art Deco style. No. 5 remains the most popular scent ever created. This volume, published to accompany a landmark exhibition in Paris, traces the birth and evolution of Chanel's timeless style. Specially commissioned photographs by Julien T. Hamon showcase the clothing, while essays by fashion historians illuminate a period, an event or a theme. Rare archival documents, including portraits of Gabrielle Chanel herself, round out the book.

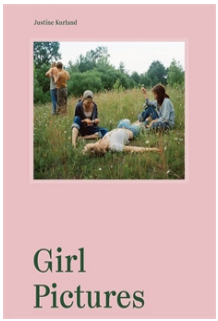
Justine Kurland: Girl Pictures

Justine Kurland



The North American frontier is an enduring symbol of romance, rebellion, escape, and freedom. At the same time, it's a profoundly masculine myth-cowboys, outlaws, Beat poets. Photographer Justine Kurland reclaimed this space in her now-iconic series of images of teenage girls, taken between 1997 and 2002 on the road in the American wilderness. She portrays the girls as fearless and free, tender and fierce. They hunt and explore, braid each other's hair, and swim in sun-dappled watering holes-paying no mind to the camera (or the viewer). Twenty years on, the series still resonates, published here in its entirety and including newly discovered, unpublished images.

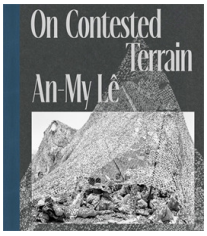
An-My Lê: On Contested Terrain

Copublished by Aperture and Carnegie Museum of Art



On Contested Terrain is published on the occasion of the first comprehensive exhibition of An-My Lê's work, organized by the Carnegie Museum of Art. Throughout her career, Lê has photographed sites of former battlefields, spaces reserved for training for or reenacting war, and the noncombatant roles of active service members. She is part of a lineage of photographers who have adapted the conventions of landscape photography to address the human traces of history and conflict, but is one of the few who have experienced the sights and sounds associated with growing up in a warzone. Lê's work complicates the landscapes of conflict that have long informed American identity.

Oscar Wilde's Italian Dream

Renato Miracco

In Oscar Wilde's Italian Dream, leading Wilde author Renato Miracco has combined written research with previously unseen visual iconographic material - from Wilde's earliest heady trips to Italy as an Oxford student to his final days in France and Italy in 1900 after his incarceration in Reading Gaol, and his voluntary exile from Great Britain. Italy, and the larger world outside of London, was essential to the sensitivity and awareness of Wilde's identity, to his contributions to the prison reform, to his challenges to the social norms and sexual stereotypes in his last years. Oscar Wilde's Italian Dream is a major addition to the canon of one of the world's greatest literary figures.

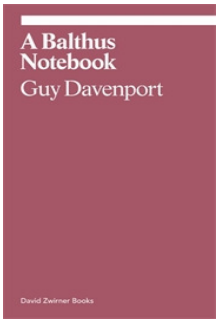
A Balthus Notebook

Guy Davenport, Judith Thurman



In his 1989 book on Balthus-the storied and controversial artist who worked in Paris throughout the twentieth century-Guy Davenport gives one of the most nuanced, literary, and compelling readings of the work of this master. Reading it today highlights the change in perspectives on sexuality and nudity in art in the past thirty years. Written over several years in his notebooks, Davenport's distinct reflections on Balthus's paintings try to explain why his work is so radical, and why it has so often come under scrutiny for its depiction of girls and women. Davenport throws the lens back on the viewer and asks: is it us or Balthus who reads sexuality into these paintings?

Two Cities

Cynthia Zarin

From acclaimed poet and New Yorker writer Cynthia Zarin comes a deeply personal meditation on two cities, Venice and Rome, and on how love and loss shape places and spaces. Here we encounter a writer deeply engaged with narrative in situ-a traveler moving through beloved streets, sometimes accompanied, sometimes solo. With her, we see, anew, the Venice Biennale, the Lagoon, and San Michele, the island of the dead; the Piazza di Spagna, the Tiber, the view from the Gianicolo; the pigeons at San Marco and the parrots in the Doria Pamphili. As a poet first and foremost, Zarin's attention to the smallest details, the loveliest gesture, brings Venice and Rome vividly to life for the reader.

Frank Gehry – Catalogue Raisonné of the Drawings – volume one 1954-1978

Jean-Louis Cohen

Written by architecture scholar Jean-Louis Cohen in direct collaboration with the architect, this comprehensive multivolume publication contains exhaustive documentation of each of Gehry's projects. The catalogue includes insightful texts and high-quality images of individual works and preparatory drawings, along with provenance information, exhibition history, and bibliographic information. The first volume leads from the minimalist volumes of Louis Danziger's studio (1964) to the extension of Gehry's residence in Santa Monica (1977-1978), which condensed the critical scope of his work and led to his international recognition in the early Eighties. SHORT DISCOUNT 30% - FIRM SALE

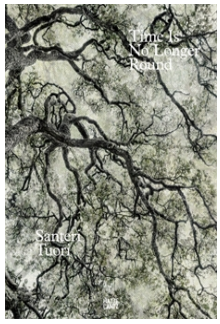
Santeri Tuori

Santeri Tuori



At first glance the photographer Santeri Tuori's pictorial world appears to be timeless. On second glance, however, it becomes clear what is going on. Tuori's compositions of trees, tangled branches, and clouds are sophisticated montages made up of countless photos arranged side-by-side or on top of each other. This results in nearly abstract, fascinatingly complex images of nature. The eye is no longer guided toward a vanishing point around which the image is organized. Instead, viewers luxuriate in an inexhaustible wealth of perspectives that allow them to continue to discover new phenomena. In every respect this is an uplifting illustrated volume.

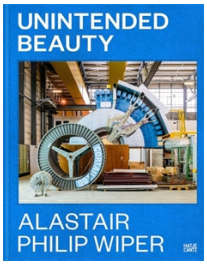
Alastair Philip Wiper

Marcelo Gleiser, Ian Chillag



With the technological and digital revolution, an entire universe of machines and computers has developed alongside the human world. These machines tell the story of what it is to be human: our needs and desires, our hopes and follies, our visions for the future. Alastair Philip Wiper's photographic eye sweeps across Adidas shoe factories, colossal shipyards, or laboratories, showing us spaces of incomprehensible complexity. Observers can experience this a kind of visuality that no longer has a consistent point of view, but a diversity that overwhelms the process of seeing. These photos not only possess a unique beauty of their own, as well as a fascinating aesthetic, but also stimulate thought and the search for one's own position in the world.

Rachel Maclean

Rachel Maclean

"Multicolored," "jarring," and "always over the top" aptly describe the worlds created by the Scottish multimedia artist Rachal Maclean. Her films are full of oddly exaggerated characters living in fantasy worlds. Wearing elaborate costumes and makeup, the artist plays most of the roles herself. Rachel Maclean's work subsists on ingenious allusions to fairy tales and fables. Her brilliant and scathing contemporary satires are directed at themes such as nationalism or feminism. They combine historical settings with an incisive, amusing view of modern lifestyles in a digital space that shifts back and forth between harmony and horror.

Hilma af Klint

When Swedish artist Hilma af Klint died in 1944 at the age of 81, she left behind more than a thousand paintings and works on paper that she kept private during her lifetime. Only in recent decades has the public had a chance to reckon with af Klint's radically abstract painting practice - one which predates the work of Vasily Kandinsky and other artists widely considered trailblazers of modernist abstraction. Accompanying the first major survey exhibition of the artist's work in the United States, Hilma af Klint represents her groundbreaking painting series while expanding recent scholarship to present the fullest picture yet of the artist's life and work.

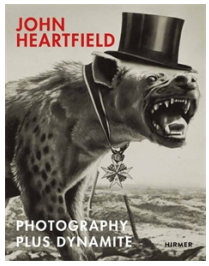
John Heartfield

Angela Lammert, Rosa von Schulenburg



The political collages of John Heartfield (1891-1968) have earned him a reputation as one of the most innovative graphic artists of the Weimar Republic. His photomontages and book covers based on collages which had their origins in Berlin's Dada scene were directed against Fascism and made him internationally famous. Their explosive power has lost none of its impact today.

Kurt Schwitters: Merzkunst

Isabel Schulz

Kurt Schwitters (1887-1948) is one of the most influential protagonists of the avant-garde, both as an artist and an author. With his utopia of the "total Merz vision of the world" he aimed at the "unification of art and non-art". The art of assemblage and material art reached its first high point in his work; his "Merzbau" is regarded as a forerunner of present-day installations. The publication provides an introduction to the Merz art of Kurt Schwitters and draws on the wealth of material to be found in the artist's estate, which is the subject of recent research. Designed by the award-winning graphic artist Marion Blomeyer.

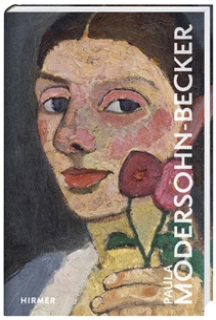
Paula Modersohn-Becker

Paula Modersohn-Becker



Paula Modersohn-Becker was largely unrecognised during her lifetime but is regarded today as one of the pioneers of Expressionism. The sculptor Bernhard Hoetger was one of the few who recognised her talent from an early stage. Hoetger's memories of Paula Modersohn were published in 1920 as an authentic contemporary document in the series Junge Kunst. They are reprinted as a facsimile in this revised and extended edition. The volume is a bibliophilic highlight with an essay explaining the artist's life and work from a present-day perspective, together with her biography and some 40 illustrations of her most important works.

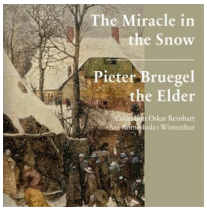
The Miracle in the Snow

Kerstin Richter



The Miracle in the Snow: Pieter Bruegel the Elder is an exhibition focused on the first painting in European art that captured falling snowflakes. The Adoration of the Kings in the Snow is the single painting by Bruegel in Switzerland. Being one of the most important Flemish painters of the 16th century, Pieter Bruegel revolutionised art by his innovative thematic and pictorial solutions and became an inspiration for all subsequent generations of artists. Rarely displayed prints and recent technological discoveries try to trace the secret of his paintings' enduring and fascinating immediacy. The cabinet exhibition was realised together with an international team of experts and is the result of a collaboration with the Kunsthistorisches Museum Wien.

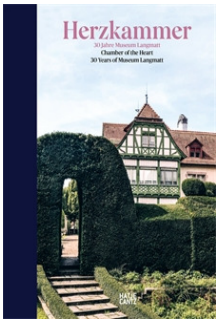
Herzkammer / Chamber of the Heart

Markus Stegmann



The Museum Langmatt in Baden is a gem in every respect. The house and garden take visitors back to the turn of the previous century, when Jenny and Sidney W. Brown set up house here. As well-informed and well-connected collectors, the couple acquired paintings by Renoir, Monet, Gauguin, Cézanne, and Degas which they displayed in the house. The Museum Langmatt, which opened in 1990, is founded upon this unique core collection. The Browns living area became an influential exhibition space for contemporary art. This carefully designed, illustrated volume has been compiled to celebrate the museum's thirtieth anniversary. It provides a look at the magical art collection and its special history.

A Blue Idyll

Brenton Hamilton

For over two decades visual artist and historian Brenton Hamilton has created a sustained body of work, mostly concentrated within the historic processes employing nineteenth century photography techniques, no longer commercially available. Influenced by the Surrealist motifs; coaxing dreamlike, chance collisions of fragments from art history, Hamilton shapes a new landscape in his photographs. He combines human anatomy, astronomy and botanical imagery to create intriguing and provocative arrangements. His work references to ancient Greece and Rome, as well as 15th and 16th century Dutch and Italian paintings. Hamilton uses symbols and visual elements from the history of art to create a thoroughly contemporary vision.

Someone Else's Mother

Caroline Irby

Caroline Irby grew up in London with a Filipina woman called Junning, who had four children of her own living 7,000 miles away. As an adult and a mother herself, the notion that Junning lived apart from her children for three decades became painful for Irby, and she revisits her childhood through Junning and her grown-up children's memories. She has written for The Independent, Evening Standard, Newsweek, and a weekly column in the Guardian Weekend. In 2010, Caroline's first book, A Child from Everywhere, was published by Black Dog Publishing. For this project, she photographed and interviewed children from 185 different countries, all now living in the UK.

Carlos Motta

This is the first comprehensive monograph of the work of Carlos Motta - one of Colombia's most recognized and celebrated contemporary artists - whose art practice explores alternative narratives regarding marginalized communities and identities in the context of social and political histories. This anthological volume brings together close to twenty years of his work, from the artist's early experiments in drawing, photography, and performance in the late 90s, to his installations based on documentary and archival research in the 2000s, until his most recent incursions in poetic filmmaking and installations that deal with pre-Hispanic and colonial sexualities.

Benedetto Camerana

Luca Molinari

What is the future of architecture? The architect from Turin Benedetto Camerana answers by examining his twenty years of career with projects built and designed, integrating them with the illustration of a contemporary vision of the landscape and the city. The volume is divided into four main sections, in which titles represent themes that outline the past and the idea of architecture, the urban context, the interior space and the landscape, topics discussed in roundtables with key figures in the sector. The volume ends with a broad overview of the international scene, relaunching the centrality of contemporary design and the search for new forms of environmental sustainability for our future.

Andrea Vallicelli, an architect, is also a yacht designer of international standing. Here, he shows us not only the boats of his studio, and how they were conceived, made and their success, but in general how yacht design has always been based on a constant intermingling between innovation and intuition of the past and how, precisely for this reason, still today it is one of design's greatest expressions. The book is also a precious collection of drawings, mostly previously unpublished, that bear witness to the evolution of design representation techniques: from pencils to software.

Mika Yoshitake

Focusing on the themes of abject politics, transcending media, performativity, and satire and simulation, Parergon brings together some of the most enigmatic works that were first generated during a rich two-decade period that are pivotal to the way we perceive and understand contemporary Japanese art today. In the aftermath of the conceptual reconsideration of the object and relationality spearheaded by Mono-ha in the 1970s, this era opened up new critical engagements with language and medium where artists explored expansions in installation, performance, and experimental multi-genre practices. The book follows the exhibition at Blum & Poe which ran in two parts from February to May 2019 in Los Angeles.

Sohail Karmani is a professor at New York University in Abu Dhabi, where he currently teaches Power and Ethics in Photography. But he is also a passionate photographer who over time has elaborated his own storytelling language around people, travels, street life and documentary photography. Born into a family from Pakistan, in 2010 he visited for the first time Sahiwal, the city of his father, better known as the site of the Ancient Civilisation of the Indus Valley, and dating to the third millennium BC. Overwhelmed by the colours, vibrations and stories hidden in each corner, he created a photo album that aims to pay tribute to the beauty, humanity, dignity and extraordinary spirit of resilience of these people.

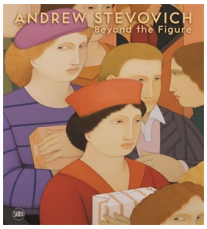
Andrew Stevovich

Michael Botwinick



Andrew Stevovich is a deceptive painter. His figures flattened, his interest is focused on the line that defines them. He rarely concedes to conventional tools like shading to express volume. Beyond the Figure examines 120 of the artist's work painted over a period of 50 years. While it shows the full range of his development, it does so looking at the dominant themes and typologies of his work rather than charting it chronologically. Stevovich has created a world, but he is not a realist. While people are his subject, line, color and form are his enduring interests.

Fashion and art have always had intimate and fruitful relations, accompanying social change and, in particular, the role of women in the world. Oscar Carvallo is a fashion designer who challenges things with his original and amusing contents and who, among his numerous artistic collaborations, is associated with Carlos Cruz-Diez, a key Op art artist and colour theorist, to elaborate new collections. His passion for art is linked to his love of nature, and pursued with true dedication. He questions the passing of time that withers and decays things and living beings, and tries to fight this decay and to build beauty - freeing it, displaying it.

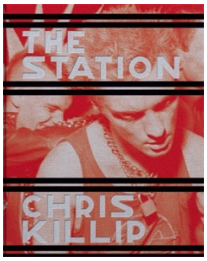
Chris Killip



Late in 2016 Chris Killip's son serendipitously discovered a box of contact sheets of the photos his father had made at The Station, an anarcho-punk music venue in Gateshead open from 1981 to 1985. These images of raw youth caught in the heat of celebration had lain dormant for 30 years; they now return to life in this book. The Station was not merely a music and rehearsal space, but a crucible for the self-expression of the sub-cultures and punk politics of the time.

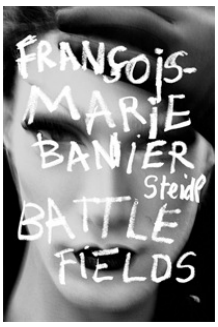
François-Marie Banier: Battlefields



Battlefields is François-Marie Banier's celebration of gay culture at its most flamboyant and proud. Comprised of photos taken at Gay Prides in Brussels, London, New York, Paris and Rome between 1994 and 2018, Banier captures the full glamorous spectrum of those parading, all the feathers, sequins and leather; but, more importantly, also the characters beneath the make-up and wigs-"I photograph the poetry, the humor, the confrontation with blinkered convention." Having lost close friends to AIDS, he remembers the tragedy of "this elusive, diabolical virus," but also the compassion of those who nursed and supported its victims: "More than angels. Such delicate devotion, full of invention. Loyalty, so touching, overwhelming."

Nowhere else in the world can one more intensely experience the work of Alf Lechner than at the Lechner Sculpture Park in Obereichstätt, Germany. Spread across landscaped terraces are more than 50 of his in part monumental steel sculptures from each series in his more than 60-year career. In a glass-roofed former workshop resides Lecher's installation Geteilte Zeitteilung, composed of 36 individual pieces, while another space is dedicated to temporary presentations of Lechner's works on paper related to the corresponding exhibition at the Lechner Museum. Finally, a grand exhibition hall, designed by Lechner and opened in 2013, houses six large sculptures- the realization of the artist's dream to install his large-scale work within an interior space.

The Bee Who Spoke: The Wonderful World of Belle and the Bee

Al MacCuish and Rebecca Gibbon

An enchanting children's picture book with an educational and environmental heart for readers aged 5 to 7.

Meet Belle, a Parisian girl who goes on holiday to the countryside and is eager to explore on her new bicycle. Soon, though, disaster strikes: Belle falls off her bike and is lost and alone. Now it's time to meet a talking bee! Yes, a bee who speaks! The talking bee rescues Belle and they set off together...

Follow the wonderful adventure of Belle and the bee as they meet every kind of plant and animal proud to call the countryside their home. Just like Belle, you'll be amazed to discover how nature works: you'll never look at the natural world around you in the same way again.

Iggy Peck and the Mysterious Mansion

FOR AGES 6-9

Andrea Beaty (Illustrated By David Roberts)

Iggy Peck is an architect at his very core: When he's not making houses out of food, his head is up in the clouds, dreaming of design. So he's totally blown away when Ada Twist's Aunt Bernice inherits an old house from ice-cream mogul Herbert Sherbert that is filled with countless rooms from all his favorite architectural periods. But something's not quite right . . . Everyone says the house is haunted, and it seems that a number of priceless antiques – which were supposed to help Aunt Bernice pay for the house's upkeep – have gone missing. If they can't find those antiques, Aunt Bernice might lose the house forever. It will take all of Iggy's knowledge of architecture and the help of the other Questioneers – Rosie Revere, Ada Twist, and Sofia Valdez – to solve the mystery and find the treasure!
