Laniakea 2015 Oil on canvas

Richard Baxter Laniakea (and painting classes)

Images that peek into the unknown, pointing in the wrong direction, making jokes about the serious and being highly serious about the bizarre. What is consciousness?

What is over the horizon? Should a transformer robot use orange traffic cones for shoes?

I'll be working amidst my recent paintings, photography, animation, and holding $5 painting classes for the duration of the festival. $5!! Come and try out your skills, beginners welcome. Phone 0421 908 203 to book a class.

Buda Historic Home and Garden Australian Studio Pottery: 1900-1950

Visit one of Central Victoria's cultural heritage icons.

Buda, once home to colonial goldsmith and jeweller, Ernest Leviny, houses a unique collection of artworks, decorative arts and furniture dating from the mid-1800s. The house sits amid a distinctive 1.2 hectare garden with unique plantings, rambling pathways and delightful garden structures.

An exclusive exhibition of Australian Studio Pottery: 1900-1950 brought together from private and public collections will coincide with the Castlemaine State Festival this year.

Lenni Morkel-Kingsbury Flowers for Oberon

"I love flowers for their treachery their fragile bodies grace my imagination's avenues without their presence my mind would be an unmarked grave"- Etel Adan.

Oberon was my Burmese cat, my muse.
He died from renal failure after ingesting lilies given to me at the opening of my first exhibition.
Positioned between adornment, object and the performative, my new work explores this story:
memories of love and death; beauty and betrayal; foolishness and folly.

Sarah Boulton

Growing up in Melbourne and moving to Castlemaine in 2000, Sarah draws on the visual juxtaposition between urban and industrial landscapes. She deconstructs the natural environments in the surrounding Central Victorian Goldfields. Creating tactile impressions, incorporating pen and ink, acrylic and macro images. The images transverse the interior and exterior on an empathetically cellular level.

The Imperial Hotel, Castlemaine (detail) 2016
Photographic print on archival cotton rag paper

John Tozer First Impressions

Award winning master photographer John Tozer moved to Castlemaine from Melbourne two years ago. He has since developed a portfolio of images which reflects his first impressions of the goldfields region, from the distinctive granite strewn landscapes to the orderly rows of orchards and vineyards;
from the diminutive miners' cottages to the grandeur of the gold rush funded edifices which still stand proud in its towns.

This is John's second Castlemaine State Festival exhibition.
