B. LANCE as at 30 April 45

106. IRIVITO OF H.F.

The practice of approaching at high speed and then changing down to a lower gear while still at compensively high speed, in order to obtain the necessary deceleration when slowing down for any purpose, e.g., stopping, entering gatemage etc., or negotiating sharp curves, corners or intersections, is forbidden. This mactice produces excessive and unnecessary strains on the whole transmission and causes excessively high engine revo.

Suitable slowing down for any surpose is a matter of judgment and drivers should at all times, so judge distance, road speed and throttle opening that, with a minimum amount of breling, the speed of the vehicle will have dropped to that at which it is safe to enter the gateway, etc., or negotiate the corner or intersection. If this reduced speed is lower than is appropriate for the gear in engagement, the driver should THEN change down so that if it is necessary for the engine to continue driving the vehicle it can do so without strain.

The engine should always be driving the vehicle while it is setually "councing". Braiding to reduce speed while actually negotiating a corner or sharp bend is dengerous, so it conduces to tail-said and overturning.
