AUSTRALIAN CORPS.GENERAL STAFF CIRCULAR NO. 45.ORGANISATION DURING DEMOBILISATION.

1. With reference to Repatriation and Demobilisation General Instructions No. 9, Annexure "A", dated 13th January, 1919, the principles governing the grouping of divisions are as follows:-
 - (a) The group should be as large as possible to allow of a complete divisional quota in each case being sent from a single group. The quota should consist of men from as few units as possible. This is essential in the interests of discipline on the return journey, and it is also in accordance with the wish of the Australian Government that men should be returned by units as far as practicable.
 - (b) The divisional quota will be sent from each group of the division in strict rotation. As few groups as possible should be formed in order to ensure that there is not too great an interval of time between the despatch of the successive quotas from each group.
The grouping of divisions will be organised to ensure, as far as possible, that these conditions are fulfilled. Instructions from these headquarters can only lay down the general lines, and the distribution of units to groups are matters for consideration by Divisional Commanders. Minor modifications of the grouping must be made under the authority of Divisional Commanders as the conditions in each division require.
2. Divisions will be organised in three groups. Where circumstances demand the Divisional Artillery, and such other units as it may be desirable to attach to it, may be formed as a fourth group. The organisation of the fourth group will be a temporary arrangement only, and as the reduction of horses and other special circumstances permit the artillery brigades should be distributed to other groups. Where this is done some departure from the principle laid down in paragraph 1 (b) may be necessary.
3. Demobilisation under the Divisional Group organisation should commence as soon as the demobilisation of men who enlisted in 1916 commences.
4. The organisation in three groups will be maintained as long as the numbers in the various groups demand. Later the groups in each division will be reduced to two and dispensing with a headquarters, and at a later stage will be reduced to a single group.
5. The Corps Commander desires that Divisional Commanders should now give their attention to the detailed organisation of their respective groups. Divisions will also work out a progressive scheme for the reduction of the divisions until each division is reduced to a single group.

* * *

In preparing the scheme Divisional Commanders will bear in mind the fact that the demobilisation of M.T. and H.T. personnel is reducing the capacity of the transport and supply services rapidly. The diminution of numbers in divisions requires that the areas occupied by divisions should be contracted. This contraction will be worked out to ensure that divisions are gradually concentrated towards their respective railheads. Units should not be required to move more often than is unavoidable.

Two copies of each Divisional Scheme will be forwarded to Corps Headquarters.

6. It has been laid down in A.I.F. Order No. 1523 that units should be amalgamated as soon as the number falls 40% below the strength of establishment. When units are amalgamated representatives of the staff of headquarters which cease to function will be attached to the staff which administers the combined unit.

This principle will be followed with groups which amalgamate, and later with divisions which amalgamate.

Each unit will retain its identity and the members will wear the colour patches of their present unit.

7. As soon as two units have been combined the unit equipment of a single unit will be employed for the amalgamated unit and the equipment of the unit which ceases to function will be returned to store. The cadre of the unit which ceases to function, vide Repatriation and Demobilisation General Instructions No. 9, Annexure "A", dated 18th January, 1919, will remain in charge of this equipment until such time as it is all returned. The complete equipment of a unit must be returned at one time.

With reference to Field Ambulances the Section will be regarded as a unit for the return of equipment.

8. It is essential that arrangements should be made to ensure a sufficient supply of special personnel such as cooks and transport drivers to maintain the efficiency and contentment within the unit until the unit has been demobilised. A large proportion of personnel of this nature are men of long service and will be withdrawn in their turn in a greater proportion than the men of the unit. In order to overcome this difficulty men of late enlistment should be attached for duty as cooks, drivers, &c. forthwith, and receive instruction in their duties. Where this involves men of one unit being employed in another unit they may be either transferred or attached. The interests of the men should be considered as far as possible in order to allow them to return to AUSTRALIA as members of their present units, and the policy will be to 'attach' rather than to 'transfer'. Where it is desirable in the interests of the man to effect a transfer, for example, in the case of a private becoming a driver, this may be done under the authority of Divisional Commanders.

9. A number of reinforcements are now on their way to divisions. It is for Divisional Commanders to determine the allotment of these men to units according to present and future requirements, and it is desirable that they should go direct to the units to which they are allotted instead of being transferred at a later stage.

10. In determining the number of medical personnel to be sent with each quota, Field Ambulances should not be reduced below the strength of a full "A" Section plus "B" Section transport until such time as a unit or group has fallen below 50% of establishment.

/s/ 11. The Sanitary Sections

11. The Sanitary Sections consist largely of long service personnel and these men must be considered for repatriation in their turn, as far as conditions permit. In order to meet the difficulty Divisional Commanders will arrange to attach as many late enlistment men as may be necessary to the Sanitary Sections. Men so attached will be employed under the orders of the Commanders of Sanitary Sections and may be transferred to the Sanitary Sections to replace men due for demobilisation, as soon as the O.C. Sanitary Section is satisfied that they are capable of carrying out the duties.

Commanders of Sanitary Sections are not to be demobilised without the authority of D.D.M.S. of the Australian Corps.
