Summary - 6 a.m. 30th June to 6 a.m. 1st July.

No. I. Section .. Quiet day. During the storm last night the enemy opened heavy fire; no attack was made but heavy bursts of fire were kept up for some time.

No. II. Section .. Very little occurred during the day. Between 2115 and 2130, just as the storm was about to break, heavy rifle fire was opened by the enemy. The greatest volume of fire was, however, towards QUINN'S and COURTNEY'S.

Enemy are using one bomb mortar from JOHNSON'S JOLLY and another from LONESOME PINE. The bombs, however, usually burst high.

Artillery .. At 0730 a series was fired at the OLIVE GROVE battery in accordance with the arrangements made for ~~the~~ aeroplane observation.

At 1915 HUGHES'S battery fired three rounds at infantry entrenching in 202 O.1 and the fire was effective.

The 5-inch howitzer battery registered three targets during the day.

Considerable movement appeared to be taking place between KRITHIA and MAIDOS over the KILID BAHR plateau. Long clouds of dust were observed for some time, and as far as could be ascertained the trend of the movement seems to have been north-east.

MEMORANDUM.

Amongst other useful information obtained from an Armenian prisoner it has been learnt that Scouts come out from the Turkish trenches at night and creep up to our position to observe, if possible, our movements.

The Army Corps Commander wishes me to draw your attention to this confirmation of what we have had indications of and to ask you to take steps to have men laying up for these scouts at likely points of approach. Everything favours the man who lies still, in dealing with a man who has to move to fulfil his mission, and a few successful ambushes will have an excellent effect.

ARMY CORPS ORDER NO. 13

Anzac Cove,

1st July, 1915.

1. The Army Corps Commander has heard that recently a party found a Turkish sniper's hole with 200 fired cases of our own ammunition in it. This shows how careful we must be about bringing the rifles and ammunition of our own wounded and dead back whenever possible. We know the Turks to be short both of rifles and ammunition, so that any of ours left behind are sure to be used; and here is a case where for all we know a number of our own men may have been picked off by this sniper armed by us.

2. At several points in our defences it is found that the enemy are able by machine gun or heavy rifle fire to cut down sand-bag parapets, just as we in our turn destroy theirs by our fire. Brushwood fascines are to be employed whenever possible in such places as revetments: when earth is well banked up in front of them they are very difficult to destroy; and therefore are not likely to fail in preventing casualties during critical periods of an attack.

Appendix I

1st AUSTRALIAN DIVISION.

Summary - 6 a.m. 1st July to 6 a.m. 2nd July.

No. I. Section .. A very quiet and uneventful day. Turks in front of our extreme right worked steadily at their trenches in this vicinity. They still appear to be apprehensive of attack; during the night they fired spasmodic bursts as if alarmed. A patrol lay out some 400 yards from CHATHAM'S POST last night but no enemy were encountered. The patrols which were covering our new work in front of the 3rd Infantry Brigade were several times exposed to bursts of enemy musketry. The enemy also made attempts to bomb them but the work progressed steadily.

No. II. Section .. A very quiet 24 hours. During the day the enemy fired into the northern portion of the section from BATTLESHIP HILL, and did some slight damage to the trenches. The enemy appeared to be working busily at GERMAN OFFICERS TRENCH. During the night there were several small bursts of fire opposite JOHNSON'S JOLLY. Listeners in two tunnels being pushed out towards the JOLLY report the the enemy appears to be tunnelling towards us.

Artillery .. Light field howitzer was located in 212 H.8; fire from JOPP'S battery caused it to cease. Another gun opened further east, the exact position of which is not located.

Efforts were made by firing at THE CHESSBOARD, TARGET "C", and trenches in front of QUINN'S POST to draw fire from the enemy guns at "C" in order that their position might be determined by aeroplane reconnaissance. The enemy guns at "C" refused to be drawn.

General .. A good deal of movement in the south was reported during the day. This has been the subject of special communications to Army Corps Headquarters.

Summary of Events from 6 a.m. 1st July, 1915 to 6 a.m. 2nd July, 1915.

NO. 3 SECTION.

A very quiet period. Nothing unusual to report beyond the fact that the enemy during the night has repaired a few of the loopholes at the head of Monash Gully which were last evening damaged by Howitzer fire.

The enemy machine gun which enfiladed QUINN'S has been located in a trench immediately in front of POPE'S HILL.

NO. 4 SECTION.

A quiet day. Very little rifle fire from sharpshooters, and comparatively little shell fire.

The ANAFARTA gun opened fire at 5 a.m. and continued intermittently for about an hour, and did not fire again until the evening.

The 6" Howitzer from near KOJA DERE fired for about an hour commencing at 6 p.m. but did no damage.

During the day A few more bodies of dead Turks were recovered by the use of grappling irons, and buried.

At 9 and 10 p.m. the left flank destroyer opened fire on the trenches beyond the NEK, and considerably damaged the enemy's works there.

During the evening our 4.5" Howitzers opened fire at the enemy's sandbagged trench at the head of MONASH GULLY, from which the rear of POPE'S HILL position can be sniped.

This operation was only partially successful, and it will be necessary to again engage them today.

A few more Turkish dead were buried during the night, and a few more rifles collected.

The estimated returns of rifles, ammunition, etc.
recovered up to date in this Section are :-

Rifles	-	96.	Appendix No. 1.
Ammunition	-	3400 rounds.	2/7/15.

1st AUSTRALIAN DIVISION.

Summary - 6 a.m. 2nd July to 6 a.m. 3rd July.

No. I. Section .. A very quiet day. During the night on the extreme right we attempted by a ruse to draw the enemy's fire but with little success.

A light horse patrol worked beyond the BALKAN GUN PITS but met no enemy, and reported that the line in front appeared to be very weakly held.

Patrol from the 3rd Infantry Brigade brought in a rifle and Turkish papers found during the night. Another patrol encountered a strong enemy outpost but returned safely. The enemy were found to be digging about 70 yards in front of our new position known as TASMANIA POST.

No. II. Section .. A very quiet day in this section also, and a quiet night. The enemy's sniping in front of the 2nd Infantry Brigade was very much less during the day than usual. During the night for long periods opposite LONG PINE no shots were fired by either side.

Artillery .. The 5-inch howitzers registered a gun emplacement on the western side of the CHESSBOARD successfully during the morning, and later on they also registered a new work on the southern extremity of PINE RIDGE. While this latter position was being fired at the 4-inch guns from about 193 H.I. fired a few rounds at HUGHES'S battery, one shell bursting in No. 1 gun pit and killing one man and damaging the wheels and some rounds of ammunition.

At 1924 a party of about 50 Turks was seen working in a trench in S.I. 2.8, and was engaged by BURGESS'S battery, apparently with good effect.

During the firing of a series from BROWNE'S battery directed towards the SANDPIT a fire was observed to break out in immediate vicinity of the enemy gun.

CADDY'S battery fired 9 rounds at THE CHESSBOARD and obtained direct hits on what appeared to be a machine gun emplacement.

Treat Red Crescent in front 11th Bn as follows. Raise Red Cross flag and wave it may shot at lower it and consider incident closed. If on other hand enemy come out send a medical officer and interpreter towards them. Meanwhile taking precautions for opening fire rapidly. Then ascertain desire of enemy. If they wish allow us to remove our dead. Send out stretcher parties bring dead in for burial. If they merely want dead buried where they are then Turks must do burial. Rife of dead must be left unless Turks allow us to bring them in. This you must ask. If Red Crescent parties come across before intentions are known and arrangements made have them ordered back.

I submit that the suggested procedure might be the cause of needless delay and inconvenience. Would it not be simpler and equally effective if all troops were warned that when any officer unknown to them passes through their trenches they should warn the unit commander, who should make the necessary investigation? In addition to this all officers should be instructed to inform section commanders of proposed visits to their sections.

Please refer to memorandum C.R.A. No.1 of 9th
May, 1915.

S.N.O. has informed flanking destroyers that they are only to take action on Signals coming from Generals Birdwood or Cunliffe Owen or Major Wagstaff, thus applying to destroyers the procedure which was formerly used with the larger ships.

2. In cases where the urgency is extreme Commanders of Brigades or larger formations are authorized to finish their messages asking direct for fire of Naval guns on new or particular targets with the word "Wagstaff". The message sent will invariably be repeated at once to Army Corps Headquarters.

Owing to his isolated situation, O.C. Nos 2 and 3 outposts is also authorized during the night to ask direct for the fire of Naval guns or for searchlight in cases of urgency, and to finish the message with the word
"Wagstaff".

It should be impressed on all who are authorized to communicate direct with the Navy in urgency that fire is only to be thus asked for on a definite and threatening target, or on a target presenting considerable possibilities of inflicting heavy loss on the enemy; and in every case the general tactical situation, as far as this is known, is to be taken into consideration when deciding to send a message without reference to Army Corps Headquarters.

3. Messages are invariably to be transmitted through one of the Flanking Stations, W5 or W6, and not by signalling from other points which may distract the ship's attention from a flanking station where possibly other important messages are waiting to get through.

I am to say that the following arrangements for obtaining naval support have been approved :-

- (i) S.H.O. has informed flanking destroyers that they are only to take action on signals coming from Generals Birdwood or Cunliffe Owen or Major Wagstaff, thus applying to destroyers the procedure which was formerly used with the larger ships.
- (ii) In cases where the urgency is extreme commanders of brigades or larger formations are authorized to finish their messages asking direct for fire of naval guns on new or particular targets, with the word "Wagstaff". The message sent will invariably be repeated at once to Army Corps Headquarters.
- (iii) Fire is only to be thus asked for on a definite and threatening target, or on a target presenting considerable possibilities of inflicting heavy loss on the enemy; and in every case the general tactical situation, as far as this is known, is to be taken into consideration when deciding to send a message, without reference to Army Corps Headquarters.
- (iv) Messages are invariably to be transmitted through one of the flanking stations, #5 or #6, and not by signalling from other points, which may distract the ship's attention from a flanking station, where possibly other important messages are waiting to get through.
