NIEPPE	June 1 st		VOLUME V Covering period of JUNE 1st to 30th 1917. The Salvage Company was this day reinforced by a section of the 2nd Augae Salvage Corps. This Section was called the "3rd Aust. Divisional Section," and as such, was attached to the 3rd Aust. Divl. Salvage Company. Under the 2nd Augae Corps Salvage Scheme, this Section, in the event of a general advance, would, together with details of the 3rd Aust. Divl. Salvage Coy., be left behind to clear up, with the assistance of civilian labor that would be requisitioned for the purpose. It was, therefore necessary that they should note how far Salvage operations had progressed, where Salvage was to be found, easiest method of transportation available, the condition of Roads, etc. With this object in view they were posted as follows:— "Four (4) at Main Dump, Nieppe, to supervise incoming Salvage, disposal of same. — Twelve (12) at advanced Dump with the main body of Salvage Company to acquaint themselves with the forward operations." It may here be remarked that these men were all, what was at that time known as, "Permanent Base men", that is, only men fit to work at the Base: some were suffering from severe Shellshock, and others were physically incapable of	12

NIEPPE	June 1st		performing hard work. There also joined us this day Corporal Middlemiss as Gas Expert to examine and report upon all Gas material British and enemy, passing through our hands.
	June 2nd		Were trying hard this day to find shelter from shell fire for our men working forward, but none is available. We have therefore to work and salve in the open with no covering but a Tarpaulin Sheet. Whilst the weather is dry, no inconvenience is caused, but shell fire is becoming very intense, counter Battery work in- creasing in violence, and situated as we are amongst Guns, in front of Guns, and behind Guns, we seem to get more than our fair share of the shelling.
	3/6/17		Private Peppercorn, who has been at the Advanced Dump at Proegsteert relieved this day, having been there over a week, and he has shown great devotion to duty, under most trying circumstances. Shell fire this day still increasing in intensity, and Section leaders are having to constantly shift their men from place to place.
	4/6/17		The bombardment is intense and unremitting, the parties are having a trying time, being hunted all over the place by shell fire, and at 3.30 AM the enemy sends over Tear Gas Shells, and Gentlers it generally about, in addition to a great wave of Phosgene Gas. This Tear Gas goes back as far back as M	M

All Section leaders advised to do their best to keep the men in safety, as far as possible, consistent with work. Sample of German gas shells were recovered, and taken to gas expert, and forwarded to Divisional Gas Officer immediately. This has been a very trying day. The night of the 4-5 was again very trying for the Company; what with gas and shell fire the men had very little sleep, and it was found safer in some cases to post the men in the forward trenches. The firing of the enemy in search of our guns was becoming unbearable for men without cover. Six men reported missing, but eventually found in Dressing Station being treated for gas. The company are having miraculous escapes, and during this night some had to take shelter underneath Water Tank that was covered with sandbags, there now being a party of eleven ^{myself} Salvage and eleven Artillery men under the Tank. The shellfire continues very intense, and a shell enters through the roof of the shelter and bursts amongst the personnel of the Salvage Coy, and Artillerymen; Seven of the Artillerymen are wounded and two killed outright, but none of the personnel of the Salvage Coy are touched, excepting that some have their clothes torn, one of the men being almost in tatters. The other party have obtained more or less shells in various parts of the area, the majority in ditches, and some in the catacombs. It is a living Hell abroad from Proegsteert Village to Hill 63 and one cannot help remarking upon the devotion to duty of various units one sees. Everyone seems to be imbued with the same spirit, and that is to do his best, come what may, to make sure of tomorrow. We find this day that, owing to the shell fire, it is impossible to place men in a stationary place to check in. Salvage, so have resolved that salvage parties shall rendezvous at 8 AM each morning, and work forward as far as possible, and recover what material they can, and place same in Dumps, ready for removal down by tramline, wheeled or pack transport.
		6 th -7 th Night	The enemy seems to have scented trouble, for he continues to throw over a large amount of gas, especially in Ploegsteert Wood where gas shells are raining incessantly. The 9th Brigade moving up on its approach march, have a rather rough time of it by what we can gather, during the night, and the 10th Brigade on the left is also having a rough time, but we are full of confidence as to result. We await breathlessly to hear the mines go up, and as far as we can gather the time is about 3 o'clock in the morning, when we hear a roar about the drum fire of the guns, but somehow or other we feel disappointed as the sound is not of such volume as we anticipated. All guns seem to be now working as though the devil possessed them, and the earth fairly rocks from the effect, and soon the boys "hop over"; what	J M Capital

One party was thrown out to the left of Messines Ridge and the bed of Douve River under Lt. Printer, and Lt. Slater worked the right of Ploegsteert Wood up to St. Ives Post office, Corporal Quincey worked the centre, Sergeant Bradford visiting here and there to assist in the supervision of operations. We find that no salvage can be brought back by rail, owing to it being used for the wounded, and we also find it impossible to bring it back by pack animals, on account of them being too exhausted. This day is devoted more or less to general reconnoitring of the ground forward, but we salvage a good quantity of equipment, German Machine guns, and obtain a lot of useful knowledge.

The Enemy were throwing immense quantities of High Explosive and Shrapnel Shells all over the field of battle to prevent supports and supplies being brought forward to the front line; it was therefore through this that the Stretcher Bearer's had to pass, and not once did I see any party hesitate in their progress, although I saw many wounded while performing their duty.

Waggon, and the driver in taking his bearings halted at Hill 63, and enquired of three stretcher Bearers, who were carrying a wounded man, in which direction Red Cottage lay. While they were talking to them one of the many bursting shells exploded near them, killing the three stretcher Bearers outright, injuring the wounded man in the arm, killing one horse and severely wounding the other, but remarkable to state did not injure the driver of the waggon, Driver base, or the officer's batman Driver Greenlee, who were seated in the box of the waggon, neither was the waggon even scratched, although the force of the explosion knocked the two men off the box, and swung the waggon around. We were finding this day many German bodies, and what concrete positions we could enter, but the whole ground covered by the 10th Brigade did not seem to have one sq foot untouched by shell fire, and therefore little salvage could be recovered from the sector of the enemy defence without laborious digging. Salvage work generally was carried on by us from this date to the 21st June, and each day was more or less a repetition of this one, and I would place on record the splendid courage and devotion to duty, and the enterprise shown by the NCO's

They never hesitated under the most exacting conditions to try and do their utmost for the credit of the Company, and it would be impossible to select a single individual for praise, where all showed such a high standard, but I would here place on record the magnificent courage shown by Bombardier Nelson, who was attached to the Unit. He was a P.B. N.C.O. through having been blown up with his gun, and under normal circumstances should have been kept away from all shell fire, yet this N.C.O. volunteered for any specially dangerous work that was to be done, and remaining at his duty until taken to Hospital through the effects of gas.
	12/6/17		After the 10th June it was found that it was possible to send Motor Lorries up to the Advanced Dump, and at times to Hill 63 to bring back Salvage owing to the Road having been repaired, and new tracks made. Back transport loading by transport was also availed of, and large quantities of Ammunition both British and German was recovered, and also numbers of enemy French Mortars, and Machine and Small Guns.
	22/6/17		On the 22nd June instructions were received to move to the Sector on the left of Messines, and on this date an advanced party was sent forward to Neuve Eglise to establish a new Dump

	22/6/17		In the meantime all the personnel of the Salvage Company were brought in from Ploegsteert Wood and Messines to Nam Dump Weippe, and owing to the congestion of material at this Dump all available men were set to work to get Salvage ready for disposal to Railhead. However on the 25th June it was necessary to send the balance of the Salvage Company personnel to Neuve Eglise and leave the Corps Salvage Section behind to clear up remaining Salvage under the direction of Sergeant Jaques. The Dump at Weippe was constantly under enemy shell fire, and shells exploded perilously near the sorting deck, and another close to the office, but fortunately both turned out to be duds. The Dump was also exposed to enemy bombing from aircraft.
	25/6/17		By the 25th June all the Salvage Company were established at Neuve Eglise, and Advanced Dump was formed at Tuberghem, but owing to the enemy shell fire it was found only possible to make Subsidiary Dumps mobile.
