RETENTION OF AVERAGE SOLDIERS IN THE

PERMANENT MILITARY FORCES

1. Subtended herewith is copy of AHQ CANBERRA 654-R16-8 dated 13 May 64.
 1. Under the provisions of MBI 171-1 paragraphs 343 and 344 a soldier may, under special circumstances, be retained beyond the age for retirement for a period not exceeding five years, in the case of an ARA soldier, or three years, in the case of a RASR soldier.
 2. It is appreciated that it is often most inconvenient for a unit to lose a highly skilled soldier who is still performing efficiently on reaching the age for his retirement. This reason cannot, however, be classed as a "special circumstance".
 3. The retention of soldiers beyond the age for retirement implies an ageing army. None of these soldiers is eligible for overseas service and, in many cases, they could not stand the strain which could be thrown on them in their present job in an emergency. They can neither be shadow posted, nor provide replacements for younger members of the Field Force who may deserve and be due for a posting in a base unit.
 4. While the current manpower shortage will tend to compel units to recommend the retention of average personnel, this cannot be condoned and units and corps should take action in time to train suitable replacements.
 5. It is proposed that in future approval will not be given for soldiers to serve beyond 55 years unless the circumstances are quite exceptional and then the extension will be for a limited period of re-engagement only.
