D[illegible]. March 20th, 1918.

When we were at Messines in supports I saw Collingwood the day he reported sick. He went to the R.A.P. and from there he was sent down, believed to be suffering from pleurisy, to the Ambulance Lines at Messines about a mile and a half away. Afterwards I read in the Anzac Bulletin of April 16th that he had died in hospital. He lived at Albert Park, Melbourne, at one time. I think his mother was a childrens nurse.

" I was with Pte. Collingwood (21. A. III) when he was badly wounded by a shell while we were holding the support line at Albert on March 26th, He died there the same day. I saw the stretcher-bearers take him away. He was probably buried somewhere near there, but I have not seen his grave. "
