On the 21st September at GLINCORSE WOOD this man assisted Sgt. Conroy to lay a telephone line from GLAHAN JUNCTION to FITZCLARENCE Paddock through a heavy hostile barrage and maintained the line for four hours under consistently heavy shell fire, thus enabling a newly replaced battery to be registered and valuable information to be sent back to Group from this observation station. On the 31st September he assisted to lay a line from the Battery to GLAHAN JUNCTION and maintained it from that place to the forward CP in continuous shell fire. He showed great coolness, gallantry and disregard for safety and seemed concerned only with his work and the line in fact was the only one which was maintained during the afternoon between the forward areas and the Infantry and Artillery Headquarters and such valuable information was passed over it.
