	44th Battalion. A. I. F.	361	private William LANE. (Continued)	This man's brave action not only saved the wounded man but prevented the enemy from obtaining an identification. private LANE has done splendid work as a Scout ever since the Battalion has been in FRANCE. He was previously wounded during the raid carried out by the Battalion at ARMENTIERRES on the night of 13th/14th March 1917. On that occasion he showed great courage and initiative in working ahead of the platoon he was guiding. passing alone through the German wire, he stood on the parapet and directed the raiding party by flashing his electric torch. He has always shewn great resource and intelligence as a Scout. Major General, G.O.C. Third Australian Division 21/7/17	A. J. Godley BRIGADIER GENERAL COMMANDING 11TH INF. BDE. A.I.F.	M.M.	10695
