Vocational Education

Overview

Marist College Canberra is a Registered Training Organisation, National Code 88004. Our registration details can be viewed here.

Vocational courses aim to:

- prepare you with skills needed in the workplace
- encourage you to gain experience in a real-life work placement
- provide you with an industry-recognised qualification
- improve your future employability
- encourage you to stay at school longer
- develop a desire to continue vocational training and lifelong learning.

Accredited vocational courses that Marist RTO are authorised to deliver are:

- Certificate I in Construction
- Certificate II in Construction Pathways
- Certificate I in Furnishing
- Certificate I in Hospitality
- Certificate II in Hospitality
- Certificate II in Kitchen Operations

Some students studying vocational course/s at Marist College Canberra commence an Australian School Based Apprenticeship (ASBA) in an industry related area. In these circumstances, the student, employer and Marist RTO work together to ensure that the additional work-study component of an ASBA enables the student to continue to work towards the achievement of their ACT Senior Secondary Certificate.

External vocational courses:

In addition, there are many vocational courses that a student can undertake externally whilst they remain a student at Marist College Canberra. These studies can be part of an ASBA or be studied independently. The Careers Adviser at the College can assist you with your choices.
