but no time to do it?

Employ a work-ready intern through the Victorian Chamber's Internship Program.

Interns offer new perspectives, the latest knowledge and insights and are ready to contribute to business.

We've heard from our members, universities and recruiters that there aren't enough paid work experience opportunities to ensure that students are work-ready when they graduate. Through our program, we're turning this around by giving employers incentive to build a highly-skilled, adaptive and productive workforce.

This program offers Victorian Chamber members up to $3000 for employing a university intern for 120 hours.

Key Features:

- > The Internship program is more than having an extra pair of hands for a few weeks.
- > Employing a student through our internship program provides benefits for business and the students.
- > Students work on a specific project with measurable outcomes because interns need real employment opportunities to develop industry skills, learn about business and the world of work, and use their education to make a contribution to business.
- > We work with our university partners throughout Victoria to source a shortlist of candidates for our members to review, interview and finally select for a project.
- > Interns are typically available for two to three days during semester and up to five days during semester breaks.

Take a look at the feedback

Intern

'The projects I worked on all had an impact on the business's services and operations going forward, in fact it was the essence of the internship. This included drafting business strategies, making business recommendations and brainstorming new ideas with management.'

University of Melbourne student, Thoughtpost Governance member organisation.

Employer

'Our Intern really "owned" the project to re-develop our website, and offered advice to our staff and to the developers of a very high quality. ...she became like a staff member in her own right.'

University of Melbourne student, Victorian Caravan Park Association - member organisation.
