From the Principal

The Importance of Good Health and Physical Activity in Our Students: a Specialist Approach at Trinity

At Trinity we recognise the importance of good health and regular participation in physical activities amongst our students and the link between these and strong educational outcomes. This is one of the reasons why we use specialist PE teachers where possible from Kinder/Prep to teach this important subject. I think in the careers of most teachers those students who achieved the best results and outcomes were usually those who participated in a wide range of sports or physical activities, often amongst numerous other activities.

The specialist approach in place at the Junior School at Trinity is there to promote these strong educational outcomes. Specialist teachers are in place in the Junior School timetable for a number of important subjects including Physical Education, Music, French, Art, Drama and Technology. I would argue that these specialist teachers enrich the curriculum on offer in the Junior School and add significant value to the learning experience of our students. This approach is certainly something which sets us apart from a lot of other primary schools.

Recently I was sent an article by a colleague which clearly outlines the benefits of this specialist approach and the benefits of regular physical activity in the education of students. The article first appeared in The Age newspaper late last year and I am pleased to print the article for your information below:

A landmark study shows that physically active primary students perform better academically.

Primary school students who exercise regularly are more likely to have higher NAPLAN test scores in numeracy and writing, according to a landmark study.

The strong link between improved academic performance and physical exercise is revealed in research by Professor Richard Telford, of the Australian National University's medical school.

Primary schools with the top NAPLAN scores also have the highest level of physical activity among their students, including participation in after-school sport, according to a study by Professor Telford to be published in March.

Another study shows children who are taught physical education by a specialist PE teacher have much higher NAPLAN test results in numeracy and writing than students whose PE lessons are taught by generalist classroom teachers in primary schools.

The specialist-taught group also had lower increases in body fat growth over two years, according to the second Telford study, published last month in the American Journal of Public Health. "These findings are strong evidence for policymakers that specialist physical education in schools is not just important from the perspective of preventative medicine but it is also associated with improving the academic development of children," says Professor Telford, who is worried that an overcrowded curriculum and inadequate teacher training is hampering physical education in primary schools.

"Kids need to become more physically active because of increasing trends for children and adults to suffer from chronic illnesses such as Type 2 diabetes and heart disease." Children in the specialist PE lessons spent more time on fitness-related activities, including strength, balance, flexibility and group work. Lessons run by classroom teachers mostly used walks, runs and traditional games. Australian primary school students are expected to get about 150 minutes per week of physical education lessons. But specialist physical education teachers are uncommon in primary schools, especially in the government sector.

Professor Telford says the findings about the academic benefit of specialist PE teachers are supported by neurological research emerging from Germany and the US over the past 10 years. The use of brain imaging has found that exercise, especially fitness activities that involve hand-eye co-ordination, can improve brain function.

"We're now realising that there's a mutual development process between the brain and other tissues like muscles," Professor Telford says. "This mutual process seems even more evident in children. So if children are not exercising they may not have the optimum environment for growth of the body and brain."

His other study showing the link between primary schools with top NAPLAN results and high levels of physical activity among students will be published next year in the journal Pediatric Exercise Science.

Both studies are part of a longitudinal research project known as the Lifestyle of Our Kids (LOOK), which is examining the physical and psychological health of 800 students at 30 outer suburban government primary schools in the ACT. The schools' student populations are a representative sample of Australia's socio-economic mix. Professor Telford, the LOOK project's research director, has strong ties to sport at the elite level. He played football with Collingwood and Fitzroy in the 1960s, won the Liston Trophy for best and fairest player in the Victorian Football Association when playing for Preston and was later appointed the Australian Institute of Sport's first sports medicine director.

The visiting PE specialists who took part in the LOOK study's analysis are from the Bluearth Foundation. The charity sends coaches into schools nationwide to run physical education sessions and train teachers. It was established in 2000 by a Melbourne computer software businessman and philanthropist, Malcolm Freake, to encourage primary students to become more active, especially in schools without a specialist physical education teacher.

More than 800 schools have used Bluearth's services, with more than 1100 teachers accredited to deliver its specialist physical education programmes. Helen Berry, the charity's chief executive officer, says she isn't surprised by the LOOK study's findings. "We've been hearing anecdotally for years from teachers about improvements in the classroom from students being involved in the Bluearth programme. Teachers tell us it's enabled kids to concentrate better and work better in groups.

"If we can have an effect early in a person's life, then that can create a lifelong love of physical activity." A Bluearth survey of 3000 teachers in 500 schools involved in the programme found 91 per cent of teachers reported the physical activity sessions had improved their students' behaviour and social skills. Ninety-eight per cent noticed a positive impact in classroom work, with students more willing to listen and co-operate in teams. Eighty-nine per cent of teachers reported improvements in student self-confidence.

Mentoring of Year 12 Students

Earlier this year the Head of Senior School instigated a mentoring system for our Year 12 students. The premise of Mr Thomas' programme was to ask both staff and students if they would like to be involved in the programme, which was primarily designed to support Year 12 students as they navigate their way through their HSC year. Staff were asked to indicate if they would be happy to be a mentor for one Year 12 student; and Year 12 students were asked to indicate to Mr Thomas if they would like a teacher to be their mentor.

I am delighted that the vast majority of students in Year 12 took up this invitation and that the support via the mentoring programme has commenced.

Not long after Mr Thomas had established this programme the '4 Corners' programme on ABC TV ran an episode partially on the potential benefits of mentoring senior students in their final year of schooling. I am encouraged by the initiative and by the way that both staff and students took up this opportunity. I am sure that it will assist our students as they complete their Year 12 studies and prepare for the HSC exams later in the year.

Well done to Mr Thomas, and good luck and best wishes to the Year 12 students and teachers involved in our mentoring programme!

From the Wodonga Campus

Working Bee

The Wodonga campus is holding a Working Bee on Saturday, 24 March, from 8.00 am – 12.00 pm concluding with a BBQ lunch. The aim of the working bee will be to complete some maintenance in the grounds and do some painting in the Food Technology Centre. Any parents and friends of the College are welcome to attend and I encourage all to support the work we are completing, as well as to take advantage of the opportunity to meet members of our College community.

Parent Teacher Interviews

Last week's Parent Teacher interviews were a success and a great opportunity for staff to meet parents for the 2012 year and discuss their child's education. I was pleased to see a large number of our parents attend. If parents were unable to attend these interviews and would still like to meet with teachers, please organise this by communicating with the teacher they wish to see and arrange an appointment.

Pedestrian Safety

It has been noted by our staff on morning and afternoon duties that a number of vehicles have been travelling quicker than expected in the car park and Ellen McDonald Drive. It has also been noted that a number of vehicles have not been slowing at the children's crossing before and after school which is extremely dangerous, particularly for our younger pedestrians. I remind all of our Trinity community that the speed limit on Ellen McDonald Drive is 40km before and after school and 10km or below in the car park. The safety of all students is the College's highest priority and I ask drivers to please adhere to speed zones to reduce the chances of an accident occurring.

Assemblies

I would like to make a quick note to acknowledge the parent attendance at our recent assemblies. It has been great to see a large number of parents attend and support our students being recognised for their efforts at the College. The students really enjoy being able to perform at assemblies and especially in front of their own parents. Assemblies are held on a B Week Thursday from 11.50 am – 12.30 pm followed by our campus Chapel service with Rev Lee and I welcome and encourage parents to attend.

Student School Banking

Hume Building Society offers the Clancy Koala Junior Savers Club to all students (both school and Little Tackers). Each Friday morning, Hume collect deposit books and money from the College and return them back to the College. If you would like more information, please see Mrs Phillips in the office for an information package.

Lather up for good health

The children at Little Tackers have been participating in an Oral health and hand washing programme supported by Colgate and Palmolive. Children have been learning the correct steps involved in washing their hands pictured on the next page.

Put one Squirt of soap in our hands

Rub soap between fingers and back of hands

Rinse soap off your hands with running water

Dry your hands with paper towel

Children have a strong sense of wellbeing

Children at Little Tackers can demonstrate good hand washing techniques and know when and why to wash their hands.

We have made our own hand washing picture stories to display in the Little Tackers bathroom.

Children are able to recall and discuss when they need to wash their hands:

1. Before eating or preparing food
2. After playing outside
3. After playing with pets
4. After using the bathroom
5. After blowing your nose or coughing

The next part of the programme is learning the proper brushing of our teeth in five easy steps.

Homework Help - Albury

Homework help is being offered to all students in Years 7 to 12 who would like some help/guidance with their homework, assessment tasks, structure of written tasks or would like to learn some great study habits, such as summarising and note taking. If you're a new student or a Year 7 student who is feeling a little overwhelmed and need some help to get organised... come along and spend one hour a week in the library... you will feel a whole lot better starting a task than putting it off.

Kate Millan

Homework help will now run on Wednesday & Thursday afternoons as of Week 7, 14 March. (3.15 – 4.30 pm)

Chess Club - Albury

Do you have an unused and unwanted Chess Set at home? Please send in to the Art room where the Chess Club will put it to good use!

Year 9 Adventure Journey Training

Last Wednesday and Thursday Year 9E students participated in six one and half hour training sessions to prepare for their upcoming Adventure Journeys. The training sessions were:

1. First Aid and Emergency Procedures
2. Route Planning and Navigation Part 1
  - Map reading/interpretation
  - Compass use
3. Route Planning and Navigation Part 2
  - Route planning
4. Preparation, food and cooking
5. Necessary equipment and how to use it
6. Team building and leadership training

A major focus of the programme at present is leadership. Students took part in a number of team building and leadership activities, where they learnt the importance of working together and supporting one another. Students were encouraged to get out of their comfort zones, work with new people and develop everyday skills when working in a team. There were many great ideas shared, lots of encouragement, some frustration and many laugh shared.

We were very fortunate to have a number of guest speakers conduct sessions over the two days and I would like to thank Mark Davis for giving up his time and sharing his great expertise and knowledge in the area of First Aid. I would also like to thank staff members Karla Wise-Chalker, Trish Pearce and Paul Trebilcock for running sessions during the two days. The students thoroughly enjoyed the two days and are now fully prepared for their Trial Expeditions in week 8.

Library News - Albury

NSW Premier's Reading Challenge Years 3-6

The 2012 NSW Premier's Reading Challenge has begun. Children from schools all across NSW take part in this challenge and it runs from now until August. The Challenge involves reading fifteen books from the Premier's Reading Challenge list and five books of free choice.

The Challenge is a great way for children to be inspired to read books that they otherwise might not try. If your child registers at the Library they will be given a printed reading log and a unique username and password. The username and password is needed to enter the books that your child reads. If you do not have internet access at home, your child can receive assistance in our Library.

All students who complete the Challenge will receive a Premier's Reading Challenge certificate.

Sports News - Albury

Volleyball

This week the Trinity Bilsons (Year 11) played a much improved game against Burrum Uni. Despite the fact that some of us had our first falls this Monday, we played a much better game making sure that we perfected our serves, digs, sets and spikes. The scores were extremely close for most of the game and we really appreciated all the help and support we got from our coach Gary and our supporters. The best player on the court this week was Campbell Ingram with his well achieved serves. Good job guys.

Growing Boys in to Good Men

Dear Parents - I write to remind parents about the inaugural Growing Boys in to Good Men afternoon being held at the College on Thursday, 29 March between 4:00 - 7:00 pm. The College is looking forward to hosting what will be a very exciting afternoon of activities.

We are encouraging all our Years 3 to 6 boys to participate in the evening. To do so, your son, with your assistance, will need to choose a male mentor to engage with him and participate in the activities. Your son's mentor could be his father/grandfather/close family friend etc. The pair will share in many memorable experiences. Should you have difficulty arranging for a mentor the College may be able to assist. Please let us know via a note on the permission slip (below).

There will be opportunities for the boys to learn about integrity, persistence, accountability, resilience, getting along, empathy and respect from their mentor through the various activities to promote and demonstrate what it is to be a young male in the 21st Century.

Some of the activities include:

- Canoeing
- Treasure Hunt
- Boxercise
- Sock Wrestling
- Trust and Responsibility Games
- The afternoon will conclude with a sausage sizzle at approximately 7:00 pm

Afternoon tea will also be provided for any boy who will remain at school prior to the 4:00pm start. Students will need to wear their College Sports Uniform.

Please complete the permission slip below and return it to Mr O'Loan by 15 March.
