INDIGENOUS PARTICIPATION PLAN

CEO’S MESSAGE

With the construction of Inland Rail now underway, the Australian Rail Track Corporation (ARTC) is committed to maximising the participation of Indigenous communities in our projects.

The Inland Rail Indigenous Participation Plan sets out how we work with Indigenous communities, industry and government across four key areas of Respect and Recognition, Cultural Heritage, Indigenous Employment and Indigenous Business.

Our commitment to Indigenous participation is supported by a high level of accountability with regular reporting on progress and outcomes.

Leadership will be fundamental to our success. This Indigenous Participation Plan reflects my personal commitment, and that of the Inland Rail Leadership Team, towards achieving a high standard of Indigenous participation in the Inland Rail Programme.

We are excited by the opportunities ahead, and look forward to working in partnership with Indigenous communities to achieve our shared goals.

Richard Wankmuller
Chief Executive Officer

ABOUT INLAND RAIL

Inland Rail is a once-in-a-generation project connecting regional Australia and transforming the way we move freight around the country. It will complete the backbone of the national freight network between Melbourne and Brisbane via regional Victoria, New South Wales and Queensland.

This new 1,700 km line is the largest freight rail infrastructure project in Australia. It will connect our farms and cities to provide supply chain benefits and substantial cost savings for freight companies and producers.

The Australian Government, through ARTC, is delivering the multi-billion dollar infrastructure in partnership with the private sector.

WORKING WITH INDIGENOUS COMMUNITIES

Inland Rail will be built and operated on the traditional lands of many Indigenous Nations and their communities. We value our relationships with these Indigenous communities, recognising their ongoing connection to Country and Culture, and their place as important members of our regions and cities.

WHY DO WE NEED AN INDIGENOUS PARTICIPATION PLAN?

We are working in partnership with Indigenous communities to create meaningful opportunities that deliver lasting benefits for individuals, their families and their communities.

This Indigenous Participation Plan explains ARTC’s goals for Indigenous participation and how we will work with Indigenous communities to share in the benefit that Inland Rail will bring to Australia.
RESPECT AND RECOGNITION: FOUNDATIONS FOR PARTNERSHIP

We understand that Indigenous communities are represented and make decisions in different ways. We also recognise there is much to learn about each community’s culture, their goals and their aspirations.

In building partnerships we want to understand community strengths and any challenges we must overcome to increase the participation of Indigenous Australians and Indigenous businesses in Inland Rail.

We show our respect for Indigenous communities and the significance we place on our working relationships with them through the way we work across Inland Rail and in every aspect of our business.

To achieve our Respect and Recognition goals we will:

- proactively engage with Indigenous communities and their leadership, including Elders, to develop partnerships based on mutual respect and understanding
- make an Acknowledgement of Country at our meetings and events, and ensure there is a Welcome to Country for significant events
- encourage cross-cultural exchanges and cultural learning opportunities for all Inland Rail employees and contractors
- celebrate our Indigenous cultures at a local and regional level, supporting and participating in NAIDOC celebrations and other community events
- where practical, work with Traditional Owners to find suitable names in traditional language and incorporate Indigenous cultural design in key pieces of infrastructure
- encourage participation of Indigenous community members in our Community Consultative Committees.

PATHWAYS TO ECONOMIC PARTICIPATION

INDIGENOUS EMPLOYMENT

We know from our conversations with Indigenous communities that providing employment opportunities is an important goal. ARTC is committed to creating opportunities for the development of skilled Indigenous workers through the construction and operation of Inland Rail.

Many of Inland Rail’s Indigenous communities have a long and proud association with Australia’s railways. In building Inland Rail, we want to create opportunities that will support a new generation of Indigenous Australians in the rail industry, providing lasting benefits to their communities.

We know that success will take commitment, planning and strong partnerships with Indigenous communities, industry and government.

To achieve our goals for Indigenous Employment and Indigenous Business we will:

- provide information and access to support in a range of formats, including our website, industry and employment events and a network of regional and project offices
- work in project planning stages to understand the opportunities that will come from Inland Rail and the capacity of local Indigenous communities to take up these opportunities
- work with Indigenous communities, industry and government agencies to support the design and delivery of training and development programs to improve local capacity where this is needed
- work with key partners to link training and development programs with other projects and local industries to provide the greatest regional benefit
- ensure Indigenous participation is included as a key element of all tender assessments
- include Indigenous participation targets in our contracts and work closely with contractors to achieve agreed outcomes.

ARTC INLAND RAIL INDIGENOUS RECRUITMENT

ARTC employs a range of professions on the Inland Rail Programme including engineering and project management, procurement and commercial, environment and sustainability, and communications and engagement.

One of our Indigenous participation goals is to increase the number of Indigenous people directly employed by ARTC on Inland Rail.

To support this goal, we will work closely with our Indigenous community networks to encourage applications and increase the number of Indigenous people applying for vacancies.

In conjunction with our Respect and Recognition goals, we provide a workplace that is inclusive and values the contributions of our Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander employees.

INDIGENOUS BUSINESS IN THE SUPPLY CHAIN

We know that Indigenous businesses are more likely to employ Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander staff and bring a range of other social, cultural and economic benefits to Indigenous business owners, their families and communities.

We are committed to supporting Indigenous businesses to ensure they are prepared for and provided with opportunities to participate in Inland Rail.

We understand there may be challenges to overcome in achieving our Indigenous participation goals for Indigenous employment and business.

Achieving these targets will be assisted by ongoing engagement with Indigenous communities, families and Elders to support Indigenous employees, underpinned by a high level of coordination between contributing programs and agencies.

WORKING WITH MAJOR CONTRACTORS

For Inland Rail projects, ARTC engages a contractor to complete the design and construction stages. These are large contracts under which there are many sub-contractors and associated employees, particularly on “greenfield” projects where the construction of new rail provides a broad range of employment and business opportunities.

We look for opportunities to contract Indigenous businesses directly through our day-to-day operations, drawing on local networks and utilising Indigenous business directories such as Supply Nation. These procurements assist in meeting Indigenous participation goals, however the majority of contracting and employment opportunities are realised in the supply chains established by Inland Rail’s major contractors.

We are working closely with our major contractors at every stage of Inland Rail projects, to ensure that Indigenous participation targets are set and achieved.
INLAND RAIL INDIGENOUS ARTWORK STORY

The Inland Rail line is symbolised by the dual tracks diagonally spanning across Queensland, NSW and Victoria, connecting Brisbane to Melbourne. Travelling through Country, the three States of purple, green and blue intersect throughout many Indigenous communities reflected with the changing artistic patterned expressions. Providing lasting benefits, the connecting pathways intersect and engage with communities providing real employment opportunities for Indigenous Australians through the planning, construction and operation of Inland Rail.

This original artwork design was created by Marcus Lee. Marcus Lee Design is a certified supplier of Supply Nation.
MEASURING AND REPORTING ON PERFORMANCE

We are committed to monitoring and measuring social performance to understand and manage social impacts and maximise the benefits associated with Inland Rail. ARTC will publish quarterly Social Performance reports for Inland Rail to track its social performance across the life of the Inland Rail Programme.

Our reporting will include information about Indigenous employment, including (where people choose to tell us) the cultural association/identity of employees, retention and separation rates and training or other qualifications achieved.

We will also report on the number and value of contracts with Indigenous businesses.

This information will enable us to build a better picture of the experience of Indigenous employees and businesses on Inland Rail and also be accountable to the Indigenous communities we are partnering with.
