Why choose Ready Steady Go Kids for your early learning centre?

We will contribute to your service's Quality Improvement Plan and Support the Early Years Learning Framework

Your centre's Quality Improvement Plan is a way to identify and reflect on areas that need improving but also to celebrate your strengths as well. Our program can be linked to many of the quality areas but Quality Area 2, Element 2.2.2 "Physical activity is promoted through planned and spontaneous experiences and is appropriate for each child" is of most relevance. A specialist sport class like Ready Steady Go Kids, that is run by an experienced coach, allows educators the opportunity to observe their group of children from a different perspective and link it back to the 5 Learning Outcomes outlined in the Early Years Learning Framework.

Support your 4-5yr old's smooth transition to school

Moving onto 'big school' is always going to be a huge change for most children. New school, new friends, new teachers but also a new class structure. As early childhood educators, your goal is to set these children up to be successful. From the start of school they will begin specialist classes with specialist teachers in music and sport. Ready Steady Go Kids is a great way to familiarise the children with the concept of a PE class while still within the comfort of their ELC.

Multi-sports program

We teach 10 different sports over 2 terms, which helps children develop a broad range of skills and build a platform of sporting knowledge. This also ensures that children remain interested and engaged throughout the entire program.

Incorporating "soft-skills"

Our program teaches children a range of additional age-appropriate skills including exploration, basic counting and colour concepts. Plus it encourages teamwork and sportsmanship, and helps to build social skills, listening skills and concentration.

The "feel good factor"

From as young as 18 months, Ready Steady Go Kids participants start to develop greater self-confidence, enhanced self-esteem, and a real sense of achievement, all of which shape their physiological wellbeing.

Parents Love It

Parents want value for money when choosing an Early Learning Centre for their child. They now want more than care and education. A specialised class within the service, like Ready Steady Go Kids, is a fantastic way to deliver more to your families and is a great selling point for new families.
