A person wearing a brown, textured sweater is holding three clear plastic bottles of Porter Green products. The bottles are arranged in a row, with the middle one being a pump dispenser and the two on either side being spray bottles. The person's hands are visible, supporting the bottles from below. The background is dark and out of focus.

the safety edit

In this unprecedented time, the immediate focus has shifted from protecting our planet to protecting our community and the Porter Green team is committed to helping protect the community in any way we can.

In this new world in which we find ourselves, diligence around hygiene is more critical than ever but many of the products we need most have disappeared from the shelves. Porter Green has teamed with our wonderful manufacturers to bring you 'The Safety Edit' to help in the fight against Covid-19.

Research has proven that alcohol attacks and destroys the envelope protein that surrounds some viruses, including Coronavirus. This protein is vital for a virus's survival and multiplication but a hand sanitiser needs to be at least 60% alcohol in order to kill most viruses.

That's why the products in Porter Green 'Safety Edit' contains 75% alcohol.

The Safety Edit range includes 100ml and 250ml hand sanitiser and 100ml surface spray.

our story.

We are porter green - a Melbourne based family business of design-driven, sustainable and reusable everyday products.

Founded by entrepreneurial sisters Jane Cox and Mary Warnest, the company has experienced rapid growth as savvy consumers around Australia and New Zealand have fallen in love with its innovative, affordable and stylish collection.

The name porter green was inspired by a tradition of the strong, resilient women in our family in who's footsteps we aspire to follow. 'porter' is not only the French verb 'to carry', it is also the maiden name of our mother, Wendy. Wendy was unique, creative and innovative and these attributes have always been at the heart of the porter green ethos. 'green', is not only the message behind the products we create, it is also an ode to Alma who's tenacity and courage continues to inspire her granddaughters.

The porter green message is simple - for the future of our planet and for the sake of our children, grand-children and beyond, make sustainable choices - choose reusable over single-use every time.

In addition to the core collection which is offered to the marketplace, every porter green piece can be customized to create beautiful bespoke product.

A myriad of companies across many industries are choosing to align their brand with the porter green message. The collection can be produced using custom pantones and offers a wide range of branding options.

In addition to the core collection which includes reusable biodegradable bamboo cups (the team's own design which was expertly engineered in Australia), foldable unbreakable silicone glasses, hot and cold stainless steel drink flask & reusable shopping bags created in recyclable fabric, the pg team has introduced the 'Safety Edit' campaign in response to Covid-19.

Comprising of 75% alcohol-based hand sanitiser and surface spray, the affordable and stylishly presented range is the perfect add-on for every type of store to offer their customers as Australians adapt to new safety guidelines, restrictions ease and doors re-open.
