Romance Was Born: A Love Story with Fashion Anna Plunkett and Luke Sales with Georgina Safe

Larger than life, utterly original and mind-glowingly beautiful, the creativity of Australia's quietly achieving, quirky but supremely talented fashion duo is an honour to behold. Anna Plunkett and Luke Sales believe in fashion as fantasy and create exquisite clothing that make us all dare to dream.

Over the past fifteen years, Romance Was Born has been shown in Paris; acquired by national institutions, including the Powerhouse Museum and the National Gallery of Victoria; and worn by the likes of Cate Blanchett, Beyonce, Sia and Daphne Guinness. More importantly, Romance Was Born has contributed to the evolution of Australia's cultural identity through their exploration of themes and their lavish, immersive runway shows.

This book reviews the inspirations and collections of this iconic label, from their first fashion show in a Sydney pub to the showrooms of Paris. This is a fashion brand that has succeeded on instinct, collaboration and boldness

Journey down the rabbit hole and into a magical world of film

World premiere exhibition at
ACMI Museum, Fed Square
5 Apr – 7 Oct 2018

Wonderland: Alice on Screen

Edited by Emma McRae and Alexandra Heller-Nicholas.

Foreword by actress Mia Wasikowska

Since the publication of Alice's Adventures in Wonderland in 1865, Lewis Carroll's Alice has delighted children and adults alike. However, this girl-hero was always destined for life beyond the page.

From silent film to animation, she has been portrayed many times and continues to inspire. Wonderland follows Alice's journey from page to screen, from 1903's silent Alice in Wonderland to her first talking film in 1931, to Tim Burton's recent blockbusters. It celebrates the endurance of Carroll's stories and characters, and the remarkable technological innovations that have enabled filmmakers to continually reimagine Alice.

Tracing Alice's evolution on screen, Wonderland is a journey down the rabbit hole and into an enchanted world where expectations are upended and curiosity rewarded.

My Chickens and I

Isabella Rossellini, Photographs by Patrice Casanova

In this delightful illustrated book, actress and filmmaker Isabella Rossellini shares her new-found passion for raising chickens. When a cardboard carton dotted with air holes arrived at her door, Rossellini expected to welcome 38 yellow chicks to her Long Island farm. Much to her surprise, her newly hatched brood included a diverse mix of heritage breeds – a discovery that prompted further research into the traits, behaviour, and history of each one. Perfectly capturing the fine-feathered glory and surprising intelligence of these spirited backyard birds, My Chickens and I pairs Patrice Casanova's photographs with Rossellini's wry observations, fun facts, and hand-drawn illustrations.

Nick Cave & The Bad Seeds: An Art Book Reinhard Kleist

In his graphic biography Nick Cave: Mercy on Me, Reinhard Kleist paints an expressive and enthralling portrait of the musician, novelist, poet and actor. It is, according to Nick Cave himself, "a complex, chilling and completely bizarre journey into Cave World".

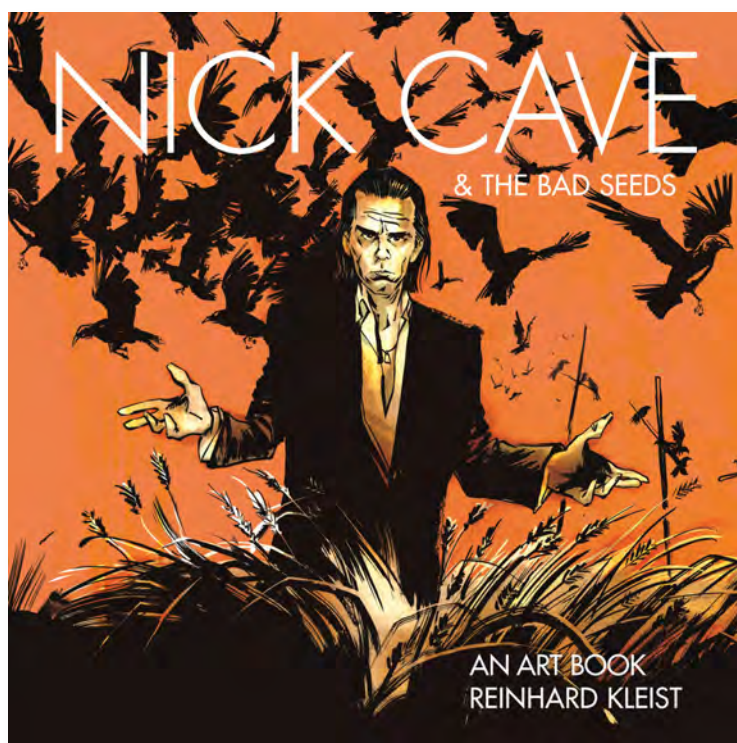

Nick Cave & The Bad Seeds: An Art Book collects Kleist's moody and expressive portraits of the musician and his band, spanning thirty years of writing, recording and live performance. Kleist also returns readers to Nick Cave's imaginative world with comic book reimaginings of "Deanna", "The Good Son" and "Stagger Lee".

Filled with visual delights, this record-sized art book is a kaleidoscopic portrait of Nick Cave's wide-ranging career as a storyteller, musician and cultural icon.

Modernists & Mavericks: Bacon, Freud, Hockney and the London Painters

Martin Gayford

Publication coincides with the major exhibition 'All Too Human' showing at Tate Britain from 28 February to 27 August 2018.

A masterfully narrated account of painting in London from the Second World War to the 1970s, illustrated throughout with documentary photographs and works of art.

The development of painting in London from the Second World War to the 1970s is a story that has never been told before as a single narrative. Gayford's new book explores this period based on an exceptionally deep well of first hand interviews, often unpublished, with the artists. His is therefore in part an oral history that gathers the statements of important witnesses and participants. But Gayford also teases out the thread weaving these individual lives together, and demonstrates how, long after it was officially declared dead, painting lived and thrived in London; how, simultaneously aware of the influences of contemporaries such as Jackson Pollock, and also the traditions of Western art from Piero della Francesca to Picasso and Matisse, the post-war painters were bound by their confidence that this ancient medium, in opposition to photography and other media, could do fresh and marvellous things.

The Night Knights

Gideon Sterer, Illustrated by Cory Godbey AGES 4-8

Night-time can be scary. Every bump, thump, or scratch could be a monster lurking under the bed or in a closet. But if that's the case, then why haven't we ever seen a monster? You might think that's because monsters don't exist. But maybe monsters do exist...but so do something else: The Night Knights. And when night falls, they take their place, protecting us all from the terrors lurking in the dark.

With a lyrical text reminiscent of the bestseller Dream Animals, The Night Knights introduces reluctant sleepers to the many fantastical warriors who will protect them while they slumber, from the Guardians of the Gates to the Midnight Flock.
