

Advisory Board

Everything we do is aimed at building stronger, more resilient businesses. An Advisory Board can play a key role in this process.

Businesses can benefit greatly from an Advisory Board

Every business regardless of size, speciality, or stage in its life-cycle can benefit from a reliable group of advisers who can offer objective, independent analysis and support.

What is an Advisory Board?

An Advisory Board is a collection of independent individuals who provide advice, support and a resource to complement and broaden the knowledge and skills of the owners, shareholders or directors of a business.

It is different to a Board of Directors. Instead, the Advisory Board serves as a mentor or knowledge base resource for the Company on an 'as required' basis, by diversifying and broadening the skill base available to the decision makers.

The Advisory Board is generally informal and does not issue directives to management. However, the Advisory Board serves to provide recommendations, information and material to the Directors. This provides more flexibility in how the Advisory Board can be structured.

Advisory Boards are generally ongoing but can be formed on an 'ad hoc' basis for particular projects or events. The members can and do change depending on the project or agenda.

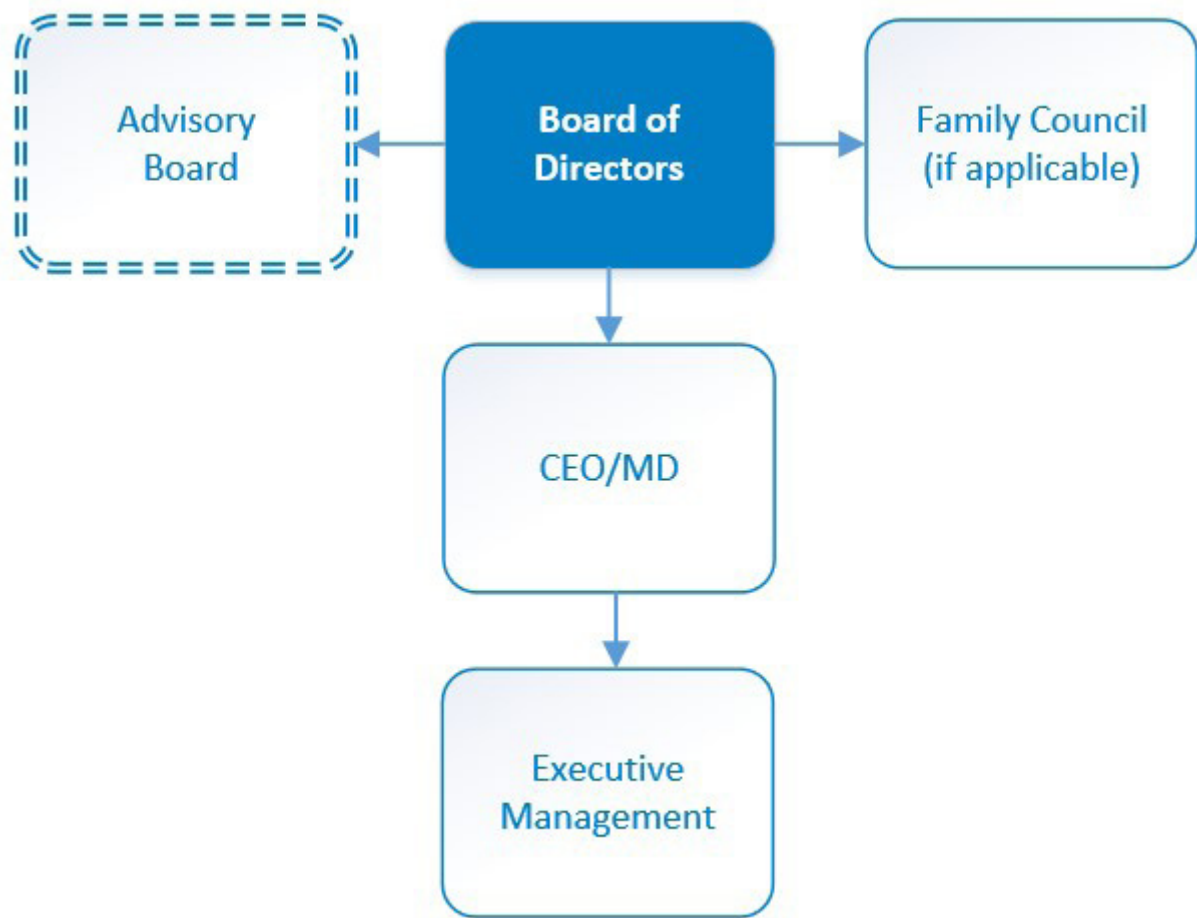

Key benefits of an Advisory Board

- Cost effective resource to broaden access to knowledge, skills or industry networks.
- Wise counsel on key issues needing to be resolved.
- Improves stakeholder or investor confidence and enhances the organisation's credibility.
- Improves the effectiveness of the director group which enhances business performance.

Typical format of an Advisory Board

- Attendance at monthly management meetings.
- Attendance at quarterly or annual strategic planning workshops.
- Weekly ad-hoc Skype, phone and email support.
