

DREAMING OF AQUAMARINE

Coming to Brisbane in March, Leonard Joel is ready to hit the hammer on some of the finest jewels and timepieces seen today.

Presenting an eclectic collection of contemporary jewellery, vintage jewels, exquisite colourful gems, and collectable timepieces within their Fine Jewels & Timepieces Auction come March, Leonard Joel is the name to know when it comes to a rare treasure. Within their highly anticipated (and dazzling) event, this auction will have a selection of mesmerising aquamarines on offer. Humbly known across the world as the birthstone for March, the mystical aquamarine is found in a range of hues from pale blue and blue/green to an intense ocean blue (aquamarine of course being Latin for seawater) and can be cut into any shape. The love for this stone has been adorned by high-end Hollywood actresses and even The Royal Family, with Her Majesty the Queen often donning a pair of Boucheron clips gifted by her parents in 1944 to celebrate her 18th birthday.

At the March Auction will be Leonard Joel’s representative specialist for Queensland, Troy McKenzie, who says many exceptional pieces will be showcased to the discerning buyer. “There are always a few exceptional pieces, but one of my favourites consigned here in Brisbane is a divine platinum art deco ring, showcasing a magnificent 3.50ct Santa Maria aquamarine and approximately 1.50cts of old European diamonds.” Impressive to say the least, Leonard Joel stands out from the crowd when it comes to one-of-a-kind pieces. Being Australia’s oldest auction house with offices in Melbourne, Sydney, Brisbane, and Adelaide, they are always able to source an interesting assortment of jewellery, art, and collectables. “Quite often these are family heirlooms and pieces that have not been offered for sale in several years, therefore being unique and often a one-off piece. And also, you can’t miss the thrill of buying at auction!” says Troy.
