

Lindum Station Precinct Study

November 2019

Lindum station is an important part of a transport precinct that helps connect the surrounding community to Brisbane's broader transport network. The station precinct services busy education, business, industry and community service providers, making a safe and accessible station vital for the area.

The Queensland Government, with support from the Australian Government, is undertaking the Lindum Station Precinct Study to determine how to best enhance safety and accessibility to and from the station, as well as make improvements to the local road network.

The strategic study will investigate broader transport pressures relevant to the Lindum station precinct, including the level crossing, traffic and pedestrian movements, bus and rail operations, active transport connections, park 'n' ride facilities, station improvements and road network proposals.

Key considerations

- Level crossing
- Traffic and pedestrian movements
- Bus and rail operations
- Walking and bike connections
- Park 'n' ride facilities
- Station access and improvements
- Surrounding road network
