

Marie Ah Phew

Dear Students of JCU,

It is with pleasure that I present my application for the post of Equity and Diversity officer at JCU SA. I am a law student at JCU and I have a passion and belief for equality, diversity, and inclusion of every single person, regardless of location, socio-economic background and sexual orientation.

I will help you to balance your studies, family situation, and work commitment, by liaising with the student advocates meeting the academic and welfare needs of external, mature aged students and LGBTI.

Being able to represent you, will give me the opportunity, to engage with the learning advisor to implement strategies for students that live in rural communities, as well as local and international students to integrate with everyone on campus, so that you can get the right support you need during your studies. I will be working in partnership with the Students and equity well-being services, international officers and the learning advisors to meet that need.

I will make sure you get equally represented by collaborating with accessibility services, learning advisors and College support officers so that you get the right support and you do not feel isolated in any circumstances.

My commitment is to provide an environment that fosters fairness that is free from discrimination, victimisation, bullying, and harassment. I will make sure you feel included in university life.

I aim to foster a culturally inclusive and diverse environment for our students, as well as fair treatment and respect from others.
