For digital images, in the Library catalogue, click on Advanced Search and select Photograph from the drop-down Format box.

(To discover the full range of images held within the collections, whether digitised or not, perform a keyword search.)

Portrait of four soldiers, three Privates and one Sergeant, one soldier is Fogarty [B 46130/88]
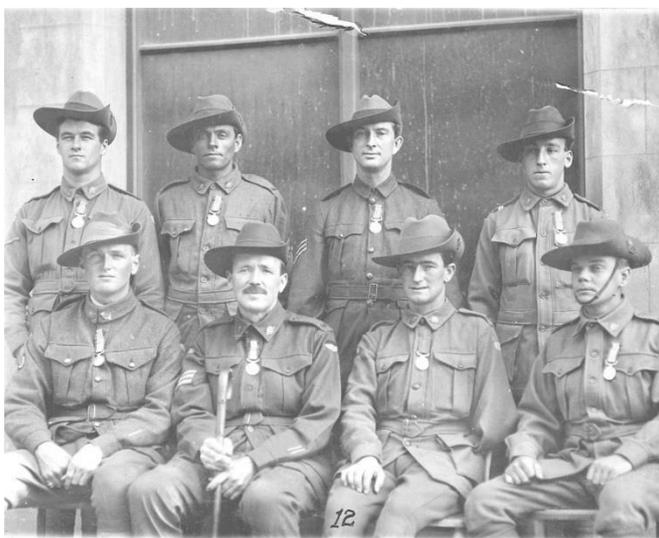

TIPS

You can also add the years to find photographs taken during the war – eg. 1914 to 1918

Using just the Surname in your search may turn up photographs of other family members or family group portraits.

Not coming up with relevant photographs? Try adding "Soldiers— South Australia" as a SUBJECT

Or you might look for photographs of soldiers from a particular town, using the town's name as a keyword in "any field"

Once you find a photograph that sounds like it might be related to your individual Click "Look at it/more info".

To find out more about the photograph and the people and places in it, click the blue "info" icon.

The Australian War Memorial has 80, 621 photographs related to World War One!

https://www.awm.gov.au/collections

Scroll down to "Collections" and click on "Photograph"

In the search box, type the name of your individual

You can then filter the tens of thousands of pictures using the list on the left side of the screen by:

Conflicts – this will help to make your search more relevant; eg. First World War 1914-1918

Units – you can narrow down the search even more by adding the unit in which your individual served, eg. 10th Australian Infantry Battalion

Places – you can also refine your search by the location of the photograph, eg. Adelaide or Gallipoli
