SA Health

The new Royal Adelaide Hospital is easily accessible by public transport with the tram and multiple bus services stopping nearby and the Adelaide Railway Station further along North Terrace.

The main public entrance to the new RAH is located off North Terrace, opposite the tram stop.

TRANSPORT

DETAILS

Train

The hospital is located approximately 900 metres west of the Adelaide Railway Station on North Terrace with a footpath connecting the two sites.

The Adelaide Railway Station is the central terminus of the Adelaide Metro railway system, which comprises 132 kilometres of railway track on the Seaford, Gawler, Outer Harbor, Belair, Grange and Tonsley Lines.

Rail passengers can either transfer to tram services using a tram stop located directly in front of the Railway Station or can walk to the hospital on the connecting footpath.

Tram

The Adelaide Metro tramline extends from the Adelaide Entertainment Centre on Port Road, Hindmarsh, via the city centre, through to Glenelg.

A tram stop is conveniently located on North Terrace adjacent the main entrance prior to the intersection of Port Road and West Terrace.

The new RAH is located within the Free City Tram Zone that runs between the South Terrace tram stop and the Entertainment Centre. Travel within this zone is free.

All Adelaide Trams are wheelchair, scooter and assistance dog friendly.

RAH Shuttle Bus: A temporary shuttle bus service will also be introduced in September to connect the old and new Royal Adelaide Hospital sites. The free City Connector shuttle service will run in an anti-clockwise direction from the old RAH along North Terrace to the new hospital, returning to the East End via Currie and Grenfell streets. It will service Stop R2 outside of the old RAH and Stop Y2 opposite the new RAH.

The new 97A shuttle will operate every 30 minutes between 7.15am and 7.15pm on weekdays and 8.15am to 6.15pm on weekends. The shuttle service will run until the AdeLINK City Tram Extension is completed.

Alterations are being made to public transport services in the lead up to the new RAH's opening on 5 September 2017. These changes include new bus stops and re-routing some existing services:

Stop Y1 will be introduced on North Terrace. Stop Y1 will be located east of Y2, just east of Liverpool Street.

Stop B2 will be introduced on West Terrace. Stop B2 will be located north of B1, just south of North Terrace.

The Hills bus route (864) will be re-routed to operate in a one directional loop from Currie Street to the new hospital via Morphett Street, North Terrace and West Terrace, stopping close to the hospital.

The C1 (Elizabeth Interchange to City) and C2 (Greenwith to City) services will be re-routed to service the hospital from 3 September. These services will travel via their normal route along Grenfell/Currie streets and then via Morphett Street and North Terrace, stopping close to the hospital.
