ABOUT THE COURSE

This course has been developed to assist you in acquiring tools and strategies that will strengthen your self-awareness, interaction and leadership skills and further define your style in the current and evolving organisational climate. With a unique process that will continue your learning post-program, you will firstly identify and then deconstruct any challenges holding you back from gaining recognition and reward in your work career and life.

The personal leadership elements of this course are designed to help develop a lasting commitment to deepen personal and professional capacities, disentangling internal experience from external circumstance and recognising that we are the creators of the former and not the victims of the latter.

This is a rare opportunity to experience insights into how we as women can achieve more of what we desire without sacrificing other vital areas of our lives.

WHO WILL BENEFIT

• Women involved with management, or looking to make the transition into a leadership role.
• Women looking to improve their work relationships
• Women in leadership roles striving for more from their life and career.
